Loendorf promoted to Assistant Library Director

Catawba County Library System has a new Assistant Director, according to Suzanne White, Library Director.

Based in Newton, Siobhan Loendorf will oversee public services and assist with advocacy and collaborative community engagement efforts.

Loendorf has assumed the position held by Lynne Reed, who retired on May 30 after 30 years of service with the library system.

“We are very pleased to have Siobhan in this leadership role to partner in the community and continue excellent library service to our customers,” White said.

Loendorf worked in customer service for over a decade before pursuing her master’s degree in library science. Prior to joining the Catawba County library system, Loendorf was employed with the EPA/NIEHS libraries in Research Triangle Park and then served as a school librarian in Charlotte.

In November 2011 Loendorf became a familiar face at the Conover and Claremont branches where she implemented library programs for all ages. She was reassigned to Sherrills Ford in February and has been actively involved in planning for the transition to a new facility later this summer.

Originally from Matthews, Loendorf holds a B.A. degree in French education from the University of North Carolina at Greensboro and an M.L.S. from UNC-Chapel Hill.

Loendorf and her family reside in Denver.
