

Tree Houses: Look who's living in the trees!

Opens Jan. 23 at Catawba Science Center in Hickory

Roam through the treetops and learn about the ecological importance of trees and the habitats they provide for animals and people. Get an up-close look at live Barred owls, Red-tailed hawks, squirrels and snakes in this whimsical and wild exhibit.

Explore an indoor tree house and use viewfinders, tracking clues, natural artifacts and sounds to learn firsthand who and what lives in the trees.

Learn about conservation, sustainable logging and building, plus visitors can design and build their own tree house.

Special events and programming throughout. Visit www.CatawbaScience.org for details or call (828) 322-8169.

Tree Houses is sponsored by Ronald McDonald House Charities, Ronald McDonald Charities of NC, George Foundation, CommScope and Unifour Foundation.
