For Immediate Release:

More Summer Reading events at county library

Newton, NC, June 10, 2014:

Summer Reading is in full swing at Catawba County Library, with special learning events for ages 18 and under. All events are free and open to the public.

Tweens 9-12 are invited to test their bravery in gross and creepy challenges at 11 a.m. Saturday, June 21 at Conover Branch.

Crime solving with forensic science will be the topic for ages 12-18 on Tuesday, June 17 at Sherrills Ford. Beginning at 6 p.m. teens will get a chance to try out their detective skills.

At the same time, Sherrills Ford Branch will host Super Science Saturday with experiments and more. The fun begins at 11 that Saturday.

School-aged children will learn about the moon and life in space during "Mission to the Moon," held at 2 p.m. Wednesday, June 25 in Conover and again at 2 p.m. Friday, June 27 at Claremont.

Youth will enjoy a Big Bang Theory Party at 6 p.m. Tuesday, June 24 at Sherrills Ford. Those who love Leonard and Sheldon won't want to miss the food, games and more.

For more information about these and other upcoming Summer Reading activities, visit your local branch or call Newton, 465-8668; Claremont 466-6817, Conover, 466-5108, Maiden, 428-2712, St. Stephens 466-6821, Southwest, 466-6818 or Sherrills Ford, 466-6827. All locations are part of the Catawba County Library System.
